Information is the be-all and end-all for good advice

We are pleased that you are seeking advice from our HARO partner.
There are many things to consider and take into account when buying a floor.

But we support you with a checklist, so that you are optimally prepared for your building project, which also helps our HARO dealer to advise you best.
Our checklist contains useful information, tips and considerations.
In addition, there is space in the checklist for your questions as well as a drawing area where you can sketch your room.

Help your consultant give you the best possible advice.
If possible, bring the following with you to your appointment:

Your favorite products
On our website you can create your individual product catalog and download it.

Floor plan of the room

How to help your consultant

Before your consultation, consider the following questions:

- Do you have underfloor heating? If yes, which heating system do you use?
- Are there height differences between the rooms?
- What are the floor coverings of the adjacent areas/rooms? (Tiles, parquet, carpet, etc.)
- Would you like to keep your current color concept in the room (walls, furniture) or do new colors move into your home with a new floor?
- Love is in the details. What accessories can you use to perfect your dream floor? Find out here: http://www.haro.com/info/zubehoer/

Here is space for your sketches and a floor plan of your room

Just three simple steps to your room sketch.

1. Measure all the walls, starting with the longest one, and draw a floor plan of your room (pay attention to elements such as bay windows).
2. Draw doors, windows, radiators and other fixed elements.
3. Sketch with arrows the incidence of light (through windows and doors) in the room.

Tip: The sketch does not have to be true to scale, what is important are the dimensions for your specialist dealer. This will enable him to advise you even more precisely.
